

EVANS, Sir SAMUEL THOMAS (1859 - 1918), politician and judge

Name: Samuel Thomas Evans

Date of birth: 1859

Date of death: 1918

Parent: Margaret Evans

Parent: John Evans

Gender: Male

Occupation: politician and judge

Area of activity: Law; Politics, Government and Political Movements

Author: David James Llewelfryn Davies

Born at Skewen, Glamorganshire, May 1859, the only son of John Evans, a local grocer, and Margaret Evans, both natives of Cardiganshire. After attending the Collegiate School at Swansea, he proceeded to Aberystwyth College and took a London degree. Overcoming his parents' wish that he should enter the ministry, he became articled at Neath and qualified as a solicitor in 1883. He served on the town council at Neath and took an active part in local politics. In 1890 he was returned to Parliament for Mid-Glamorgan, which he represented continuously for the next twenty years. His abilities and his gifts as a debater made him a prominent member of the Welsh Parliamentary Party. In 1891 he was called to the Bar and he soon acquired a large practice on the South Wales circuit. He took silk in 1901, being the last Q.C. to be created by queen Victoria. In 1908 he was made recorder of Swansea; in the same year he was appointed Solicitor-General. In 1910 he became president of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court. He was a G.C.B. and a member of the Privy Council.

It was while presiding over the Prize Court during the first world war that Evans established his reputation as an international jurist of the first rank. The spirit in which he approached his task was expressed in his famous dictum: 'Precedents handed down from earlier days should be treated as guides to lead and not as shackles to bind,' and the mastery with which he developed established principles to meet the changed conditions of modern war was recognized even in neutral countries whose interests were adversely affected by his decisions. Along with Sir Leoline Jenkins and lord Stowell he ranks as one of the principal builders of British prize law.

S. T. Evans died 13 September 1918 and was buried at Skewen. He was an honorary LL.D. (1909) of the University of Wales, and a freeman of Swansea and Neath. There is a bust of him by Sir G. Frampton, R.A., in the Royal Courts of Justice and there are portraits at the Middle Temple and at the University College of Wales, Aberystwyth. After his death a fund was raised by public subscription to perpetuate his memory, and this was transferred to the University of Wales to establish the Sir Samuel Evans prize to be awarded annually to the best candidate in the faculty of law. For some manuscripts by or relating to him see N.L.W. MSS. 2231-42.

Author

Professor David James Llewelfryn Davies

Sources

Oxford Dictionary of National Biography

The Times, 14 September 1918

Western Mail, 14 September 1918

South Wales Daily News, 14 September 1918

his contribution to the history of British prize law may be studied in standard works on international law such as

Hall, Pearce Higgins (ed.), A treatise on International Law (1924) (8th ed.)

Lauterpacht (ed.), Oppenheim's International Law (1905, 1940), xi (6th ed.)

Further Reading

NLW Archives: Mid-Glamorgan Election, Monday Next, 8th October, 1900: Kindly Vote For S. T. Evans...

NLW Archives: General Election 1906 Wales and Monmouthshire. A Souvenir containing photographs, biographical sketches etc., of all the Welsh MP's: S.T. Evans

NLW Archives: Sir S. T. Evans, K.C. Kindly vote for your OLD MEMBER

Wikipedia Article: Samuel Evans

Images

NLW Archives: Sir S. T. Evans, K.C.

Additional Links

VIAF: 218391316

Wikidata: Q7412772

Published date: 1959

Article Copyright: <http://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/>

The Dictionary of Welsh Biography is provided by The National Library of Wales and the University of Wales Centre for Advanced Welsh and Celtic Studies. It is free to use and does not receive grant support. A donation would help us maintain and improve the site so that we can continue to acknowledge Welsh men and women who have made notable contributions to life in Wales and beyond.

Find out more on our sponsorship page.

