Born 1789, a native of the Fishguard district, he is also associated with Letterston, and is said to have started to preach at Llangloffan, but it was as a schoolmaster at Cardigan that he spent the greater part of his life. He was a man of many parts - linguist, littérateur, astronomer, a poet in the free metres, and editor of a Welsh almanac founded by him, at Cardigan in the 1830's; but he is best known, as his pseudonym implies, for his interest in mathematical problems. He died 15 October 1841, aged 52, and was buried at Siloam, y Ferwig.
