Date of death: 1904
Spouse: Anne Rees (née Rees)
Parent: Mary Rees
Parent: Daniel Rees
Gender: Male
Occupation: preacher with the Calvinistic Methodists
Area of activity: Religion
Author: William Llewelyn Davies

Born 4 June 1818 at Blaentrosol, Capel Drindod, Llandyfriog, Cardiganshire, son of Daniel Rees, shoemaker, and Mary (alias Malen) his wife. The son learnt to practise his father's craft. He began to preach on 21 April 1846 and went to a Unitarian school at Newcastle Emlyn for about three years. In 1857 he moved to the parish of Llanilar, but after his marriage on 6 January 1860, to Anne Rees, Pentre-du, he went to reside at Bronnant where he spent the remainder of his life apart from preaching and lecturing visits to various parts of Wales, and London. He became well known because of the originality (often amounting to oddity) of his sermons, with their wealth of homely and rustic imagery, and because of the 'degrees' of LL.B. and Litt.D., which he managed to secure (1891) from some source in America - his biographer, J. M. Griffiths, names the ' New York Druidic Banchorrion ' as the source of these 'titles' or 'diplomas'; their acquisition served to excite much amusement and discussion in Calvinistic Methodist circles. He wrote some books - for details see the Cofiant named below - he had a local reputation as an amateur antiquary and book-collector. He died 9 December 1904.
