

JONES, DAVID JOHN ('John David'; 'Dai Tenor') (1906 - 1978), opera singer

Name: David John Jones
Date of birth: 1906
Date of death: 1978
Spouse: Mary Jones (née Phillips)
Child: Trevor Jones
Parent: Daniel Rees Jones
Parent: Maria Jones (née Davies)
Gender: Male
Occupation: opera singer
Area of activity: Music; Performing Arts
Author: Rhidian Griffiths

David John Jones was born on 29 June 1906 in Pant-teg in the Swansea Valley, the youngest of the five children (three sons and two daughters) of Daniel and Maria Jones. His father, Daniel Jones, spent the years 1910-20 working in the tinsplate industry in Russia, before returning to the post of foreman at the Dyffryn tinsplate works in Pontardawe. The family moved to Commercial Road, Rhyd-y-fro, near Pontardawe, and at the age of 14 David was employed at the local tinsplate works.

The choral conductor W. D. Clee (1884-1946) heard him sing at Saron chapel in Rhyd-y-fro and gave him vocal tuition. When Clee formed the Ystalyfera Choral Society in 1925, Dai Jones joined the choir and further developed his talent, appearing as a soloist at their concerts. He competed at eisteddfodau, and following his victory in the challenge solo competition at an eisteddfod in Ammanford in 1926 he was invited by Kingsley Lark to join the Carl Rosa Opera Company, a travelling company which employed many Welsh singers. He appeared as a soloist in a number of the company's productions.

The Ystalyfera Choir gave an entire concert at the National Eisteddfod in Caernarfon in 1935, in which Dai Jones appeared as a soloist and made a great impression, with some believing him to be an Italian tenor. During the same year he acted as understudy to the celebrated tenor Beniamino Gigli, and it was partly through Gigli's intervention that he received an invitation to sing at La Scala Opera House in Milan in 1936. Though he decided not to accept the invitation because of the growth of fascism and the uncertain international situation, he was able to travel to South Africa with the 'London Follies' company, and was warmly praised by press correspondents there. He also sang with the 'Brighton Follies' on BBC radio broadcasts between 1937 and 1940.

He returned to the tinsplate works during the Second World War and was sent to work in Crewe. He resumed his singing career after the war and joined the newly-established Welsh National Opera Company, singing the principal role of Turiddu for the company in Mascagni's opera Cavalleria Rusticana in Cardiff in 1948. Then in 1949 he changed his stage name to 'John David' and became a member of the 'London Quartet' managed by the impresario Sandor Alexander Gorlinsky; the other members were Sheila de Haan, Dorea Raye, and his fellow-Welshman Bruce Dargavel (1905-1985). He continued to sing in opera, appearing in the principal role in Verdi's Don Carlos in Dublin and Gounod's Faust in Cork, for which he received lavish press notices. He would also appear regularly as a soloist in performances of oratorio and on a variety of radio programmes, such as Welsh Rarebit, Silver Chords and Grand Hotel. It is a matter of regret that his voice was not captured on commercial recordings. According to those who heard him it was a sonorous voice, which could fill the largest halls without the aid of a microphone. Bruce Dargavel said that his voice combined the size of the Amazon with the clarity of a Welsh mountain stream. His varied career is a good example of success in the world of singing without the advantage of formal education.

He married in 1934 Mary Phillips (b. 1912), who was herself a successful singer and elocutionist; his best man was his fellow-singer from Swansea, Howell Glynne (1906-1969). Dai and Mary had one son, Trevor, born in 1936. Dai retired from the stage in the late 1950s and became a park-keeper in Pontardawe. He died on 10 December 1978.

Author

Rhidian Griffiths

Sources

Information from his son, Mr Trevor Jones

Glyn Williams, 'John David, y tenor o Bontardawe', Llais: papur bro Cwmtawe, 376 (Hydref 2015), 18-19

Additional Links

Wikidata: Q111272947

Published date: 2022-03-17

Article Copyright: <http://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/>

The Dictionary of Welsh Biography is provided by The National Library of Wales and the University of Wales Centre for Advanced Welsh and Celtic Studies. It is free to use and does not receive grant support. A donation would help us maintain and improve the site so that we can continue to acknowledge Welsh men and women who have made notable contributions to life in Wales and beyond.

Find out more on our sponsorship page.

