

JENKINS, ALBERT EDWARD (1895 - 1953), rugby player

Name: Albert Edward Jenkins
Date of birth: 1895
Date of death: 1953
Gender: Male
Occupation: rugby player
Area of activity: Sports and Leisure Pursuits
Author: Gareth W. Williams

Born 11 March 1895 at Llanelli, Carmarthenshire, he became the town's idol. His talent on the rugby field flowered when he played as full back for the 38th Division during World War I, but it was as a centre for Llanelli club that he came into prominence. Llanelli was the most successful club for a period during the 1920s, with men like Dai John, Ernie Finch and Ifor Jones in its ranks, but it was 'Albert' who inspired them. Although he was not tall (5 foot 8 inches) he weighed over twelve and a half stone. He could sprint, had a powerful tackle, and a kick like a donkey from the hand and from the ground. He could time his pass to his wing perfectly. He was never selfish but he could change the course of the game on his own. Between 1920 and 1928 he won 14 caps for Wales, and could have won many more but for the foolishness of the selectors of that time. It was generally thought, both then and since, that he was one of the best centres Wales ever had. He captained Wales on his last international appearance, at the age of 33, against Ireland in 1928. He refused more than once an offer to play rugby league. He died 7 October 1953, and was honoured with a civic funeral by the borough of Llanelli.

Author

Professor Gareth W. Williams

Sources

J. B. G. Thomas, Great ruggers players, 1900-1954 (London 1955)(1955);

David Smith and Gareth Williams, Fields of Praise. The official history of the Welsh Rugby Union 1881-1981 (Cardiff 1980) (1980);

Llanelli Mercury, 8 October 1953.

Further Reading

Wikipedia Article: Albert Jenkins

Additional Links

Wikidata: Q4710573

Published date: 2001

Article Copyright: <http://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/> 